Thanks Becky. I'm able to access all 4 papers and have been reading them this weekend. Did you take in any Fur Rondy activities this weekend?

Hi Gary,

Here is a link to a subsistence dataset that might have information for Bristol Bay. Unfortunately, when I checked out the link, I couldn't find an easily accessible file format (excel or word). If you are interested in the data, you might want to contact Jack.

Hi Becky:

Here is the link: <http://www.iser.uaa.alaska.edu/Projects/SEARCH-HD/aonsub.htm>

If you guys have any further questions about using the data, please contact Jack Kruse
afjak@uaa.alaska.edu

I am copying him here. Jack, Stephanie and I are working with ENRI and the Alaska Natural Heritage program on a couple of projects. It looks as though the AON subsistence dataset might come in handy for these—so I thought I'd just bring you into the loop in case our collaborators have any questions.

Best,

Marie

Hi Marie,

Can you send me the link to the subsistence database developed for the arctic observing network?

Thanks, Becky
